

2-3 Gayle says: Riddles are good for your brain. They can help you think in more unusual ways. If you get stuck, get your friends to help.

1. The more I dry, the more wet I am.

What am I? _____

2. Before Mt. Everest was discovered, I was the highest mountain above sea level on Planet Earth.

What is my name? _____

3. If two are company and three is a crowd, what does that make four and five?

What is your answer? _____

4. Four colleagues always stay the same distance apart. Although they run and run, they never get any closer to each other.

The reason? _____

5. Outside in a rainstorm, a man had neither a hat nor an umbrella—but he avoided getting any hair on his head wet.

How did he do that? _____

6. I am called “golden,” but if you even whisper my name, I disappear.

What am I? _____

7. I can only be seen when there is light. But if it shines directly on me, I disappear.

What am I? _____